

Putting It Into Perspective: How Big Can Exempted Projects Be Under the New NEPA Changes?

The Trump Administration has proposed changes to National Environmental Policy Act regulations for national forests, which would exempt projects—including commercial logging—from full environmental review and public comment. This map gives an idea of how large these projects could be under the new loopholes. *Note that this map is for illustration purposes only. The proposal would only impact national forest lands.

 Any Project Described as "Restoration"

 Commercial Logging

11.5 square miles